WOMAN'S GRAVE.

I can pass by the tomb of a man with somethat of a calm indifference, but when I survey the grave of a female, a sigh involuntarily escapes me. With the holy name of woman I as-sociate every solt, tender and delicate affection. I think of her as the young and bashful virgin, with eyes sparkling, and cheeks crimsoned with each impassioned feeling of the heart; as the kind and affectionate wife, absorbed in the exerbeauty, &c., any where. Her best efforts will cise of her domestic duties; as the chaste and be used to render satisfaction. She tenders her virtuous matron, tried with the follies of the thanks for past favors. THE LOVED AND LOST. A lady was riding some years since through Connecticut, in her father's Carsage, when they were brought to a stop by a voman com-ing from a cottage near which they were passing, and beckening to them. Draving the rein tight and stopping his horses, Mr. 1— waited her approach. As she came near, ler face appeared intelligent and very attractive but melancholy withal, and her eye was restles and roving: but as she reached the side of the crriage, and laid her hand on the window edge, sligazed with intense earnestness into the face of he lady, and 100,000 Cazadore, Rifle, Spanish and Halfasked, " have you seen William, an where?" Startling as the proximity of a deraged person 10,000 La Flora, Jenny Lind and La Riena do; manifestly must have been, the lady ad sufficient presence of mind to assure her that she had not seen William, and the poor watche by the road side turned away with a sigh. Years had passed, and the inciden was almost forgotten, when a few weeks ago, the same lady, through Fulton street in Brooklin. A loud cry attracted her attention, and, looking it the side walk, she saw a woman with streaming hair and wild eye running down the street, scraming "Willy, Willy, Willy," in a voice that eemed, as she described it, so unutterably monful and thrilling, that it must reach the ear of im she called, unless that ear was sealed in the silence

AGRICULTURE IN VIRGINIA. The subjoined extract from the valuable address delivered before the State Agricultural So-ciety, by Hon. Willoughby Newton, gives a pleas-ing aspect of Virginia compared with other States:

that in 1840 Virginia was the third wheat producing State in the Union, Pennsylvania being the first, and Ohio the second, neither much in advance of Virginia, which, relatively to population, far exceeded them both. It should be borne in mind, that wheat is the principle staple of Pennsylvania, whilst Virginia produce: or export is should be amount, will be made up in John E. Page, Esq., For prisoner, Wm. T. Daugh-When, in addition to this, it is recollected that Pennsylvania has been, for more than half a century under an ameliorating system of husbandry, whilst in Virginia no general attention has been given to improvement, until within a very few years, no doubt can remain of the great natural uperiority of Virginia. The census report, too, is of the crop of 1849, at which time the influence of concentrated manures, now so generally used in Virginia, was scarcely felt. The crop of that year was 14,516,906 bushels. From my own observation and extensive inquiry, I am satisfied the crop of 1850 in Eastern Virginia exceeded that of 1849 at least 25 per cent., and the crop of 1851 was in the same proportion, larger than that of the preceding year. My own crop of 1850 exceeded that of 1849 by more than 100 per cent., and the crop of 1851 was greater by 25 per cent. than that of 1850. I think there can be no doubt that the crop of last year exceeded twenty mil-lions of bushels, and that Virginia may now be put down as the first wheat growing State in the Union not only relatively, but absolutely. There can be no better test of value of land than its capacity to produce wheat, and taking this as the criterion, our poor old worn out State is certainly not inferior to any in the Union, old or new.'

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

Mr. Bones, of the firm of Fossil, Bones, & Co. was one of those remarkable money-making men, whose uninterrupted success in trade had been the wonder and afforded the material for the gossip of the town for seven years. Being of a familiar turn of mind, he was frequently interrogated on the subject, and invariably gave as the secret of his success, that he minded his own business.

A gentleman met Mr. Bones on the Assanpink bridge. He was gazing intently on the dashing foaming waters as they fell over the dam. He was evidently in a brown study. Our friend ventured to disturb his cogitations. " Mr. Bones tell me how to make a thousand dollars.

Mr. Bones continued looking intently at the be wanting. water. At last, he ventured a reply. "Do you see that dam, my friend?" "I certainly do."
"Well, here you may learn the secret of makng money. That water would waste away and be of no practical use to any body, but for the dam. That dam turns it to good account makes it perform some useful purpose, and then suffers it to pass along. That large paper mill kept in constant motion by this simple economy. ouths are fed in the manufacture of the article of paper, and intelligence is scattered broad cast over the land on the sheets that are daily turned out; and in the different processes through which it passes, money is made. So it s in the living of hundreds of people. They get enough money. It passes through their hands every day; and at the year's end, they are no better off. What's the reason? They want a dam. Their expenditures are increasing, and no practical good is attained. They want them dammed up, so that nothing will pass through their hands without bringing something backwithout accomplishing some useful purpose.— Dam up your expenses, and you'll soon have enough occasionally to spare a little, just like that dam. Look at it, my friend.

SPIRIT RAPPINGS.

Among the many wonders of the Spirit Rappers, we learn that in a country village, not fifty miles from Cincinnati, a poor fellow had lost his favorite dog. He enquired for Towser, and the Man-" Is your spirit happy?"

Dog-"Yes." Man-" Are there any coons there ?" Dog-" Yes, but they are twice the size they are in your country, and I can't catch them." This is said to have actually taken place. We

NO. 47.

CHESAPEARE AND ORIO, CANAL.

We are happy to be able to state that immediately after the late treshet, the President and Directors of the Canal Company adopted such States:

"An intelligent friend who find traveled much in the United States, and was fartloularly familiar with the fertile States of the West, remarked to me a few years ago," that he had no doubt there was more good land at that day in proportion to territory, in Virginia, exhausted as she was, than in any State in the Union." This opinion is rendered unquestionable by the only authentic data within the reach, the returns of authentic data within the reach, the returns of authentic data within the reach, the returns of the repairs for the re opening of navigation, has all the registrate of the canal, and they have met it as became the legitimate guardians of its interests.

The amount estimated by the Chief Engineer, Mr. Fisk, as necessary to complete the requisite repairs for the re opening of navigation, has all the residue. measures to obtain the funds necessary for rerepairs for the re opening of navigation, has already been announced at $30,000. Of this the Corporation of Georgetown has contributed $30,-000 by a loan of its bonds; the Banks of Wash-Alleghany and Washington counties, and elsewhere along the line. By this timely assistance, the Chief Engineer has been already enabled to commence the work of repairs on an enlarged scale, and we understand has fixed the 15th of July as the day for the re-opening of navigation. It appears that the largest amount of damage is on that part of the Canal from 10 to 20 miles

This bill provides for the appointment of "overabove Georgetown. Here it is estimated that it

Here it is estimated that it will be necessary to expend from $25,000 to and districts to correspond with that of the Com-$30,000. But with sufficient force the work can be completed by the period designated. The injury sustained by the other portions of the Canal is at different points along the line, but chiefly from Harpers Ferry to the Point of Rocks. It is worthy of remark that the new portion of the work-from Cumberland to Dam No. 6-suffered less than any other, notwithstanding the water was six feet higher than in 1847. This fact is a sufficient commentary on the skill of the Chief Engineer, by whom that part of the work was

At Sumterville, S. C., about ten days since, the following painful event occurred :-

A gentleman was busily engaged in planting out the common yellow jasmin vine in. his yard, and, after trimming away a few of the roots, threw them aside, where they were Tuesday week, a freight train on the Michigan | picked up by two of his little children, aged. as we are informed, about three and five years. The children were playing with them for some time, and no doubt chewed and swallowed portions of the root. After a short time, the youngest returned to its mother, and, laying down near where she was sitting, fell into a slumber, as she supposed. After a while, she called to awake her child, but ineffectually. She stooped down to raise it up, but it was dead. The elder child was then taken ill, and in the course of a few hours, was also in the land of spirits.
